Grant Laviolette's first day of retirement delivers up a strange recipe for murder.

Blissfully unaware that he has offended the wrong men, Grant heads off on a driving trip to Alaska as his reward for ending his long and fulfilling legal career. Twin psychopaths follow him like shadows, murdering innocent women and planting incriminating evidence pointing directly at Grant. Grant will soon discover that an exemplary life means nothing when the media and the police believe that they've found the "Serial Killer Lawyer".

ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Donald W. Desaulniers is a lawyer from Belleville, Ontario, Canada, his beloved hometown, where he ran his law practice from 1973 until he retired in 2009. The author graduated in 1968 with a B.A. from University of Waterloo, majoring in Philosophy, and in 1971 received his LL.B. from University of Western Ontario Law School. He was called to the legal bar in Ontario on March 23rd, 1973. Still living in the beautiful city of Belleville with his lovely wife, Jane and their cats, Donald began writing fiction as a retirement hobby. THE TWIN SHADOWS is his 14th published novel and is the author's first attempt at writing a murder mystery. Most of Donald's books are about older lawyers. For a complete list of those other novels, check out his Author Page on Amazon.com. Donald hopes that readers enjoy these novels as much as he loved writing them.
