The final installment in the Colorado Chapters trilogy! Plague has changed the world, and most of the people left alive as well. In Colorado, survivors are learning to adapt to a new way of life. Naomi, a housewife in the time before, struggles to redefine her place in the world, as the Woodland Park community looks to her for leadership. Her daughter, Piper, follows Jack in search of his sister, but neither can leave the past behind completely.

And when the violent gang in control of Colorado Springs threatens everything the Woodland Park survivors have been struggling to build, it is brilliant young Grace who has the answers and a plan, and who could end up paying the ultimate price. In a world where humanity's evolution has complicated even simple social interactions, underestimating an opponent can have lethal consequences, and understanding yourself can mean the difference between life and death. But in the end, survival isn't enough. For those who would not just survive, but thrive, the path leads within, and the soul's journey becomes the place all people call home.
