Sara Ramnarine is just starting out her career in Toronto, a city that is touted as one of the most cosmopolitan in the world with its motto, “Diversity is our Strength.” As a smart, driven, educated, contemporary woman, Sara assumes her rise up the corporate ladder will be seam. But she soon discovers that the workplace is full of pitfalls and obstructions, including discrimination and racism.

Eventually, Sara is forced to make a critical decision that affects her career and state of mind, risking her reputation for years to come.
