Under the Dome Alex lives outside the dome which means he lives in poverty, disease and filth. John lives inside the dome, meaning he lives a life of luxury and celebration. In a post-apocalyptic world only one city remains, everyone who lives within its walls are wealthy and only care about their fabricated society whilst the world outside dies slowly. However, a new trend amongst the wealthy is picking out feral humans outside of the walls and calling them ‘pets’, teaching them tricks and showing them off. Alex never wanted to be chosen, he never wanted to be dragged into the giant sphere but John had other plans. He couldn’t resist the younger man’s slender figure or silky hair. He becomes his owner and Alex soon finds himself having to do whatever John says...
