In the mid 1990s, a silly argument between two individuals in their early teens leads to the seeding of two gangs.

The gang war between the 'Coyers' and the 'KVM' initially involve fights that are mainly related to studies, sports and affairs. Pooja Savarkar firmly believes that the Earth is about to witness a catastrophic natural disaster in the near future; an event that may be related to a gravitational pull that is exerted over the universe across a hundred light years. As Pooja joins the Coyers, another problem crops up; the sudden psychotic behavioral change in one of the gang members of the KVM, the exact underlying reason of which remains unknown to begin with.

His behavior clearly influences friends and foes drastically. The gang war, which till date was benign, turns bloody and violent. As time passes by, the gang members realize for sure that the fight has now assumed international proportions, in which as many as eleven countries are now involved financially. The gang war has now reached the status of the Good vs. the Evil; the saviors of half the world's population vs.

the people who want them killed by the forces of nature. The forces clearly influenced by the fifth dimension of space: Gravity.
