

Spring Sowing poems by Pamela Constantine

Author:	Pamela Constantine
Language	English
Published:	1950 by Hodder and Staughton
Goodreads Rating:	4.00
Pages:	63

Spring Sowing poems by Pamela Constantine.pdf

Spring Sowing poems by Pamela Constantine.epub

Spring Sowing is a collection of poems by a young poet; for that the publishers make no apology. They are lyrics, and youth and lyricism go together. They are written by one to whom poetry comes as naturally as leaves to a tree. Since earliest childhood, Pamela Constantine has produced verse of great promise. Now, when she is nineteen, it is not for mere reasons of art charm or preciosity that we put this volume before you. We believe that those who do not subscribe to "the all-to-common belief that the only good poet is a dead poet" will gladly give her a hearing. The future of all poetry lies with young poets.