Can you imagine a beetle as big as a mouse or a butterfly with a wingspan of twelve inches. Big bugs are rare and even more rarely seen. And even if you could see the biggest butterfly in its natural habitat, it might seem small and ordinary. But what if you could look at the huge bugs up close, compared to things in your own house? Then you'd truly know what amazing creatures they are.

Here is your chance to get a peek at thirteen of the world's largest insects. You'll learn fascinating facts and shiver in delicious horror as you browse through this collection of bugs that you definitely won't find under any rug.
